SLAM, BAM, THANK YOU, MA'AM DEPARTMENT: You gotta feel bad for 46-year-old Mary Ann Spencer, who claims she was "tossed around like a human volleyball" by slam dancers at an X/Oingo Boingo concert in California last summer. Spencer was chaperoning her niece when she was struck by an airborne slam dancer and suffered a broken leg in the dance attack. She has filed suit against the bands and the venue where the incident occurred.

THE ANNOTATED PUNK

you are what you wear—and vice versa

True punk fashion is determined by your attitude toward your apparel, not by the apparel per se. If you wear it to conform to other punks, you're an asshole. If you wear it to offend other people—even other punks—you're really an asshole, and that's cool.

MOHAWK HAIRCUT. If it's long, it can't be natural. Glue is de rigueur.

LOGO. Here, that of the Dead Kennedys; but any other offensive band name will do.

SPORTS JACKET. Secondhand polyester, misshapen and disgusting.

'ZINE. Preferably photocopied and certainly nothing with a circulation of more than a few thousand.

BELLY BUTTON. Anything homely and biological is to be flaunted.

BLUE JEANS. Like black leather, a little suspicious but acceptable if properly decrepit.

BEAT-UP CANVAS SNEAKERS. Boots don't cut it for skateboarding, the only punk-approved sport.

STUBBLE. If you shave your head, it should be at irregular intervals lest you give the impression of actually grooming.

BLACK LEATHER. A little suspicious, since it is popular among heavy-metal fans, but honorable due to historic roots (Marlon Brando).

A HOMEMADE ASYMMETRIC TATTOO. For the truly committed.

T-SHIRT. If it's new, it's got to be ugly. If it's old and shredded, it can be anything but an athletic jersey, which is reminiscent of The Eagles.

ARMY-SURPLUS MOTORCYCLE BOOTS. Should be black, with no connotations of backpacking in the countryside.

JxFxAx-(Untitled) This album is high performance stuff. Don's guitar and Bam Bam's drum-ing mix very well. "untitled" features 11 brand new songs that can really blow
you away! If you haven't checked it out
I suggest you do.
